At the sold out fund raiser evening at the Khandallah Arts Theatre production of A Skull in Connemara we were greeted with drinks and nibbles before Vice President Lionel Nunns introduced himself and in turn introduced three Murphys, familiar faces all and better known as Michael, Dermot and Rory. Their task was to entertain us and put us in the mood for a black comedy.

Just what mood that would be remains unclear but we were entertained and Michael got the audience singing even though it seemed that only some of the lines on his song sheet were the same as ours.

Then a fine performance of the play. A successful evening all round.
